EMT 416: Entrepreneurship Study (2 Units)

Instruction: Answer 4 questions in all 2 hours

1.You have been invited to present a workshop for aspiring entrepreneurs. Define who an entrepreneur is and outline two essential qualities that distinguish successful entrepreneurs from others, using real-life examples where possible.

2.As an Environmental Management professional, you are preparing a tender proposal for a global oil services company seeking solutions for an oil spill. Describe five bioremediation techniques you would propose and explain practically how each would be applied on-site to ensure a sustainable and cost-effective clean-up.

3.With your degree in Environmental Management and Toxicology, identify three industries where your expertise would be highly valuable. For each industry, propose one innovative service you could offer that addresses an existing market gap.

4.Akpos believes he can independently purchase chemicals and carry out fumigation services without professional training. Prepare a short advisory memo explaining to him three fumigation methods, the essential safety protocols, and why engaging a certified professional like yourself is critical to avoid legal, health, and operational risks.

5.You are developing a bioremediation start-up. Explain how shifts in market demand and evolving regulations from environmental agencies could impact your business strategy, pricing, and service delivery. Use practical examples to support your points.

6.In preparation for launchin
