TERM PAPER, BEENTAKEN?

In recent years, taxonomists have been using a variety of molecular techniques, such as DNA sequencing, to determine the evolutionary relationships between different species. This has led to a better understanding of the diversity of life on Earth and has helped to identify new species. The use of molecular data has also allowed scientists to study the evolution of specific traits and to understand the genetic basis of many diseases. In addition, molecular techniques have been used to study the evolution of the human species and to identify the genetic basis of many human diseases. (Webster & Webster, 2007).

MODULE 1: READING AND READING COMPREHENSION

JOMO

CARES

READING

Reading is thinking (Thorndike, 1917). It is a complex psycholinguistic process that involves the following activities: thinking, making predictions, questioning, evaluating, defining and problem solving. James (1984) defines reading as the process of communication through which most formal learning takes place. It involves understanding written language and responding to an author's message. Reading is important for academic development, achievement and advancement in life. One can read for different purposes- for enjoyment or leisure, for professional development or academic purposes.

READING COMPREHENSION

Reading comprehension is defined as "the process of simultaneously extracting and constructing meaning through interaction and involvement with written language" (RAND Reading Study Group, 2002: 11).

READING FOR ACADEMIC PURPOSES

In this course we will consider, Reading for Academic Purposes – this is study-type reading. It involves decoding, thinking, interpreting, evaluating, making inferences and problem-solving. When you read for academic purposes you need to be sensitive to the way written text discourse is organised, the way writers use language, and be proficient in the use of skills that make reading a meaningful and worthwhile exercise. You also need to adopt a flexible reading rate. Some reading skills and strategies are presented below, note that the list is not exhaustive.

READING FOR ACADEMIC PURPOSES INVOLVES THE USE OF A VARIETY OF READING SKILLS AND STRATEGIES:

|---|---|
| ➤ Anticipation | ➤ Identifying the writer's attitude |
| ➤ Skimming | ➤ Making inferences |
| ➤ Scanning | ➤ Using word analysis strategies |
| ➤ Identifying main ideas and supporting details | ➤ Applying textbook reading strategies |
| ➤ Understanding the structure of texts | ➤ Using underlining as a reading strategy |

READING SKILLS

• ANTICIPATION:

When you use anticipatory skills, you use the title to guess what the author will mention in the text. For instance, in the short passage below, we may expect the author to discuss features of Mount Kilimanjaro and perhaps its location.

TASK:

The title of the next passage is 'Mount Kilimanjaro'. Before reading this passage, use the title to guess four key words you would expect to find in it.

Mount Kilimanjaro

Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain in Africa, is located in northeastern Tanzania, near the border with Kenya. Kilimanjaro is a dormant volcano, its two peaks stand 11 km (7 mi) apart and are connected by a broad ridge. Kibo, the higher peak, rises to 5,895 m (19,341 ft) above sea level, and the summit of Mawenzi is 5,149 m (16,893 ft) above sea level. Although Kilimanjaro lies 3° south of the equator, an ice cap covers the crater of Kibo year-round; this ice cap is pierced by several small craters. "The Snows of Kilimanjaro" (1938), one of the most famous stories of American writer Ernest Hemingway, is set in the region. Kilimanjaro has a number of different vegetation zones on its steep slopes. Coffee and plantains are grown on the lower slopes of Kilimanjaro. The mountain was successfully scaled for the first time in 1889 by German geographer Hans Meyer and Austrian mountain climber Ludwig Purtscheller.

- SKIMMING:

When you skim, you run through a text rapidly to determine its main ideas, or to acquire superficial information. When you want to skim through a study text, look out for the topic sentences (since they contain the main ideas expressed in paragraphs). Pay particular attention to signal words/phrases, these give you the direction of the author's thoughts. For instance, to indicate that an author wants to say something in addition to what he had said before, he may use expressions like: also, besides, in addition, again, furthermore.

- SCANNING:

Scanning requires going through a passage rapidly in order to search for specific information.

TASK:

Read the passage on Los Angeles very quickly and provide answers to the following questions.

1. Which city does the author mention?
2. The air pollution problem mentioned is known as.....
3. The type of pollution mentioned in Question 2 consists largely of oxidizing agents like..... and
4. The major constituent of industrial smog is

The American city of Los Angeles has its own peculiar air pollution problem, known as photochemical smog. This sort of smog differs from more common forms of smog in that it consists largely of oxidizing agents such as ozone and nitrogen oxides, whereas the main component of industrial smog is sulphur dioxide.

Adapted from: Bolitho, A.R. and Sandler, P.L. (1980) Study English for Science

- IDENTIFYING MAIN IDEAS:

The main idea of a paragraph is the central or most important idea in the text and it is usually expressed as a single statement that summarizes the whole idea in the paragraph. It is the most important message of the writer.

To find the main idea of a paragraph, ask these questions:

- i. Who or what is the paragraph about?
- ii. What aspect or idea about the 'who' or 'what' is the author concerned with?
- iii. Identify the topic and ask yourself this question 'what general point does the author make about the topic?'
- iv. Pay particular attention to any idea that is repeated in different ways. If a writer repeats the same thought in different sentences or paragraphs, that idea is the main idea.
- v. If you have found the main idea, you need to test it. Do so by asking if the supporting details, examples and graphic information in the text provide evidence in support of the main idea that you identified.

FACTORS THAT CAUSE SLOW READING

- | | |
|--|---|
| ➤ Word- by -word reading | Inability to skim and scan |
| ➤ Vocalization and sub-vocalization | Slow reading rate |
| ➤ Poor visual perception | Low word power and poor retention |
| ➤ Regression | Inability to interpret what is read |
| ➤ Finger pointing and head movement | Inability to read critically |
| ➤ Difficulty with the return sweep | Difficulty with identifying the main idea and details |
| ➤ Inflexibility | Poor retention |
| ➤ Lack of comprehension skill, including | |

READING EFFICIENCY

This is the act of reading and comprehending well, it is one of the factors that facilitate reading to remember. The following lead to reading efficiency: phrase- by- phrase reading, concentrating on the ideas and thoughts expressed by the writer rather than the words, establishing a purpose for reading, reading critically, learning to engage higher mental activities such as – thinking, evaluating, problem solving while reading, adjusting one's reading rate to suit the difficulty level of the reading material, sensitivity to the structure of texts, paying attention to directional words/phrases and punctuation marks, use of appropriate skills and strategies in reading different types of texts.

FACTORS THAT AFFECT READING EFFICIENCY

We shall consider these under three broad headings: environmental, physiological and psychological factors.

Environmental factors: a reader remembers what he has read if he reads in a comfortable environment. Environmental situations that are conducive to study-type reading include: a comfortable room, adequate lighting, good ventilation, quiet environment and good weather.

Physiological factors: a reader will read well and remember what he has read if he is he does not have physical problems such as visual impairment e.g., long or short sightedness, does not suffer from fatigue, illness, stress, hunger. Factors that have direct positive impact on the reading/learning process include: the reader's level of intelligence, motivation, efficiency and level of cognitive processes.

Psychological factors: emotional problems, lack of interest in the subject matter, motivation, etc. impede efficient reading; therefore, emotional stability will go a long way in ensuring that one reads well.

Writing Effective Paragraphs

JOMO CARES

Preliminaries

- A paragraph is a collection of sentences which all relate to one main idea or topic.
- Effective paragraphs have four main characteristics:
 - a topic sentence,
 - unity,
 - coherence, and
 - adequate development.

Adapted from <http://faculty.washington.edu/ezent/impd.htm>

Topic sentence

- The topic sentence is the main sentence of a paragraph, which describes its content and direction. A topic sentence should help us focus, and tells us what to expect from the paragraph. Readers look to a paragraph's opening sentences for framework.
- The topic sentence should appear first or early in the paragraph, unless you have a good reason to place it elsewhere.
- Each topic sentence introduces an idea, judgment, or opinion.
- However, in order to grasp the writer's exact meaning, people need explanation. This is found in the subsequent sentences in the paragraph.

AOC shares

Effective topic sentences

- Beginning a paragraph with a topic sentence is one of the best ways to achieve clarity and unity in one's writing.
- The function of a topic sentence is to describe what the paragraph will be about, such that the reader has clear expectations about what will follow.
- An effective topic sentence typically contains only one main idea. The remainder of the paragraph then develops that idea more fully, offering supporting points and examples.
- After reading a topic sentence, one should be able to anticipate the type of information contained in the rest of the paragraph. If the remainder of the paragraph does not fulfill the "promise" of the topic sentence, the paragraph will lack unity, coherence and adequate development.

Unity: one main idea

- Unity refers to the extent to which all of its sentences work towards the same end. Each phrase and sentence should illustrate, clarify, explain, support, or address the topic sentence. All of the ideas contained within a given paragraph "hang together" in a way that is easy for the reader to understand.
- When the writer changes to a new idea -- one which is not consistent with the topic sentence of the paragraph - the writer should begin a new paragraph. Unity is important because it aids the reader in following the writer's ideas.
- The reader can expect that a given paragraph will deal only with one main topic; when a new paragraph begins, this signals that the writer is moving on to a new topic.

Badly written paragraph: no unity

• "Employees' attitudes at Jonstone Electric Company should be improved. The workers do not feel that they are a working team instead of just individuals. If people felt they were a part of a team, they would not misuse the tools, or deliberately undermine the work of others. Management's attitude toward its employees should also be improved. Managers at Jonstone Electric act as though their employees are incapable of making decisions or doing their own work. Managers treat workers like objects, not human beings."

• In this example., there are two main ideas presented in this paragraph. The topic sentence indicates that the paragraph deals with the subject of "employees' attitudes," but the paragraph shifts unexpectedly to the topic of "management's attitudes." To achieve unity in this paragraph, the writer should begin a new paragraph when the switch is made from employees to managers. The text in red should ideally be in another paragraph.

Coherence: all sentences hang together

- Coherence refers to the extent to which the flow of ideas in a paragraph is easily understood by the reader. For this reason, coherence is closely related to unity. In a coherent paragraph, everything should stick together: Topic sentence and support form a connected line of thought, like links in a chain.
- When a writer changes main ideas or topics within a paragraph, confusion often results.
- To achieve coherence, then, a writer should show how all of the ideas contained in a paragraph are relevant to the main topic.
- Paragraph coherence can be damaged by sentences that are too short or choppy, that are in the wrong order, and when there are insufficient transitions or connectors for linking related ideas

JOMO CARES

Badly written paragraph: no coherence

Schools should offer courses to help students with the problems of unemployment. Such a course might begin with a discussion of where to find employment, then cover resume writing and interviewing. Algebra and history don't help students with real-world needs. They are required courses that students aren't interested in, and this is frustrating for students who would rather learn about other subjects. If schools offered job-skills courses, students would be well prepared for the difficult task of finding a job once they finish school."

Consider the example here. In this paragraph, the writer begins with the topic of job-skills courses, but veers off onto the topic of algebra and history before returning to the subject of courses on employment. As a result, the paragraph is disjointed and difficult to understand.

Incoherent paragraph

Solar power offers an efficient, economical, and safe solution to the Northeast's energy problems. Unlike nuclear power, solar power produces no toxic waste and poses no danger of meltdown. Solar power is efficient. Solar collectors could be installed on fewer than 30 percent of roofs in the Northeast. These collectors would provide more than 70 percent of the area's heating and air-conditioning needs. Solar power is safe. It can be transformed into electricity. This transformation is made possible by photovoltaic cells (a type of storage battery). Solar heat collectors are economical. The photovoltaic process produces no air pollution.

- Defects
- Sentences are too short and choppy.
- Links between ideas are insufficient
- The paragraph reads more like a list than like a flowing discussion
- There is no concluding sentence to complete the chain of reasoning and to give readers clear perspective on what they have just read

A coherent paragraph

1Solar power offers an efficient, economical, and safe solution to the Northeast's energy problems. 2To begin with, solar power is highly efficient. 3Solar collectors installed on fewer than 30 percent of roofs in the Northeast would provide more than 70 percent of the area's heating and air-conditioning needs. 4Moreover, solar heat collectors are economical, operating for up to twenty years with little or no maintenance. 5These savings recoup the initial cost of installation within only ten years. 6Most important, solar power is safe. 7It can be transformed into electricity through photovoltaic cells (a type of storage battery) in a noiseless process that produces no air pollution – unlike coal, oil, and wood combustion. 8In contrast to its nuclear counterpart, solar power produces no toxic waste and poses no danger of catastrophic meltdown. 9Thus, massive conversion to solar power would ensure abundant energy and a safe, clean environment for future generations.

The sequence of thought can be easily traced:

- 1. The topic sentence establishes a clear direction.
- 2-3. The first reason is given and then explained.
- 4-5. The second reason is given and explained.
- 6-8. The third and major reason is given and explained.
- The conclusion reemphasizes the main point.

• To reinforce logical sequence, related ideas are combined in individual sentences, and transitions or connectors (in bold font) signal clear relationships. The whole paragraph sticks together.

Adequacy of development

- A paragraph is adequately developed when it describes, explains and supports the topic sentence. If the reader is left with questions after reading the paragraph, the paragraph has not been adequately developed.
- Generally speaking, a paragraph which consists of only two or three sentences is under-developed. A paragraph should contain at least four sentences which explain and elaborate on the topic sentence.
- Paragraph length depends on the writer's purpose and the reader's capacity for understanding.
 - In writing that explains concepts, attitude, or viewpoints, support paragraphs generally run from 100 to 300 words.
 - Writing that contains highly technical information or complex instructions may use short paragraphs or perhaps a list.
- But word count means very little. What matters is how thoroughly the paragraph makes your point.

Methods of paragraph development

- Define technical terms in the topic sentence
- Compare and contrast
- Evaluate causes and reasons
- Analyze the topic
- Describe the topic
- Offer a chronology of an event (time segments)
- Use examples and illustrations
- Cite data (facts, statistics, evidence, details)
- Examine testimony (what other people say such as quotes and paraphrases)

When is a new paragraph needed?

- When you begin a new idea or point. New ideas should always start in new paragraphs. If you have an extended idea that spans multiple paragraphs, each new point within that idea should have its own paragraph.
- To contrast information or ideas. Separate paragraphs can serve to contrast sides in a debate, different points in an argument, or any other differences.
- When your readers need a pause. Breaks in paragraphs function as a short "break" for your readers—it will help your writing more readable. You would create a break if the paragraph becomes too long or the material is complex.
- When you are ending your introduction or starting your conclusion. Your introductory and concluding material should always be in a new paragraph. Many introductions and conclusions have multiple paragraphs depending on their content, length, and the writer's purpose

Support Paragraph

- ✓ A support paragraph is a group of sentences that work together to explain, illustrate, or provide evidence for a single topic.
- ✓ Several support paragraphs usually work together to explain the main idea of a story, an essay, or a section of a business or technical report.
- ✓ The best way to keep your writing focus on its main idea is to make sure your supporting details are clear and your paragraphing is strong.

A strong support paragraph has

- ✓ a topic sentence that is clearly related to the main idea.
- ✓ a clear relationship to the main idea through signal words or paragraph transitions.
- ✓ a combination of general and specific detail.
- ✓ a clear relationship between one sentence and the next. This relationship is established through sentence transitions.

To evaluate a support paragraph, ask:

- β Is the topic sentence clear?
- β Is it direct (topic sentence) or implied?
- β Is this the best strategy?
- β How does it relate to the main idea?
- β Does it relate to the previous paragraph?
- β Do the transition words and phrases are clear?
- β Does it have specific detail (specific facts, examples)?
- β Do the sentences relate to each other through transitions or connectors?

Types of Paragraph Development

- β Narration
- β Exemplification
- β Process
- β Description
- β Comparison and Contrast
- β Analogy
- β Cause and Effect
- β Definition
- β Analysis
- β Enumeration

Narrative Paragraph

A story that is written to explain what, when, and who. It reveals what a reader should learn. Narration paragraphs are usually written in chronological order.

Use narration to establish a series of events that tells the reader what happened. Narration follows a chronological pattern of development. It is a convincing mode of paragraph development to the extent that it tells a coherent story. This pattern or time line is usually very easy to understand.

Example

Narrative Paragraph

The carbon feasibility studies were completed in October, 1978. Immediately thereafter, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) "Blue Magoon" was dispatched to the site to provide on-site emergency treatment. First, wastewater generated during construction was collected, pH adjusted, clarified, sand filtered, and carbon treated. Next, treated effluent was analyzed and was found to confirm Calgon's study findings.

Exemplification Paragraph

Use exemplification paragraph to provide instances that clarify your topic statement. In the following paragraph, the topic sentence is supported by examples that illustrate, support, and clarify the main point.

Example

Vitamins and minerals can be added to enrich (replace nutrients lost in processing) or fortify (add nutrients not normally present) foods to improve their nutritional quality. Bread and cereals are usually enriched with some B vitamins and iron. Common examples of fortification include the addition of vitamin D to milk, vitamin A to margarine, vitamin C to fruit drinks, calcium to orange juice, and iodide to table salt.

Process Paragraph

Use process in paragraphs to develop sequences that describe how an action is carried out or how something works.

Example

To format a Secondary Hard Drive, first, right-click on the "My Computer" icon either on your desktop or in the Start Menu and select "Manage". A new window titled "Computer Management" comes up. Second, select "Storage" from the left hand side by clicking it once, then select "Disk Management(local)" from the right side by double-clicking it.

Description Paragraph

Use descriptive paragraph to provide a physical picture or a functional view of the subject. Physical description develops a picture by identifying the shapes, materials, position, and functions of its subject.

The Old Car

The old car slowly chugged down the street like the caboose of a steam engine train. The car is old and weathered with rust covering the entire body like cancer consuming its victim. Wheels and tires wobble like a drunk bum on his way home from the bar. Hub caps are gone along with all the mirrors and extras on the car.

Comparison and Contrast

Use comparison and contrast to develop a topic by examining its similarities or dissimilarities to another thing, process, or state. Comparison emphasizes the similarities, contrast the differences. A paragraph may use both comparison and contrast.

Example

Spring weather in Vancouver is similar to spring weather in Halifax. Both have rain in the spring and cold winter. However, winter is much colder in Halifax while Vancouver has a mild winter.

Cause and Effect

- β Use cause and effect in paragraphs when you are tracking the development of one situation or event out of another.
- β Cause and effect is an analytical mode of paragraph development that attempts to show how events are influenced by or caused by others—the linkage of causation.

Cause and Effect

In the following paragraph the development follows the inductive pattern of reasoning from effects back to causes.

Global climate change resulting from the accumulation of greenhouse gases, for example, is likely to have significant health effects, both direct and indirect. An average global temperature rise of 3-4°C, predicted for the year 2100 by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, will greatly increase the number of days in the United States with temperatures over 38°C(100°F), with a resulting sharp rise in heat-related mortality. Deaths would occur primarily from heat strokes, heart attacks, and cerebral strokes. The very young, poor, and elderly, as well as those with chronic cardiovascular and respiratory diseases, are most at risk. During the two-week heat wave of July 1993 in the eastern United States, 84 people died in Philadelphia alone as a result of the higher temperature.

Definition

- ℳ Defining is an effective way of controlling the scope of terms.
- ℳ Definition paragraph are used in order to explain the meaning, origin, and function of things.
- ℳ You could define concrete terms universally, but abstract ideas and words vary in their definition. For example, while most of us would define a rock or tree in a similar manner, each one of us would define love, hatred, cruelty, or tenderness in different ways.

Example

Definition

*Cholera is an intestinal infection that can be described according to its cause, symptoms, and treatment. A bacterium, called Vibrio cholera, is the causative agent of cholera. It can be spread through contaminated food, water, or feces. Cholera patients may exhibit different symptoms that can vary from mild to severe. Some symptoms are watery diarrhea and loss of water and salt. Oral or intravenous replacement of fluids and salts as well as specific antibiotics is a possible treatment for cholera. Patients can be treated with an oral rehydration solution or, in severe cases, an intravenous fluid.*

Analysis

Analysis examines a subject by evaluating one of its aspects, weighing evidence and possible causal linkages. The object of analysis, however, is to get to the point of how something works.

Analysis

The following paragraph considers the link between cancer, poverty, and stress.

One possible explanation for these statistics on cancer can be found in the high levels of stress associated with poverty. Studies have found that stress can dampen the immune system (the body's first line of defense against cancer) and experiments with animals have shown that a stressful environment can enhance the growth of a variety of tumors. The link between poverty, stress, and cancer mortality in humans has not been proven, but studies have shown a link between stress and other illnesses.

Enumeration

Use enumeration in paragraphs when you want to itemize or list a set of topics or a series of some kind.

Enumeration is a powerful way to establish a series of observations and to emphasize each element.

Example

Enumeration

In the following paragraph, the items are enumerated in a series of itemized recommendations.

Have your blood cholesterol measured if you've never had it done. Finger-prick tests at health fairs and other public places are generally fairly accurate, especially if they're offered by a hospital or other reputable health group. When you know your "number," follow these guidelines from the National Cholesterol Education Program:

- ¶ If your cholesterol is under 200 mg/dl, maintain a healthy lifestyle-including eating a low-fat diet, getting regular exercise, maintaining a health body weight, and not smoking, then get another test within five years.
- ¶ If your cholesterol is between 200 and 239 mg/dl, have a second test performed. If that number falls in the same range, and if you do have any form of cardiovascular disease, change your diet to improve your cholesterol. In addition, eliminate any other risk factors you have and get tested again in about one year.

Writing References

A well-written academic piece of writing must have a list of materials consulted or used during the process of gathering information for your own writing. A list of such materials is called 'References' and it comes at the end of the written work.

Failure to acknowledge other people's ideas we use when we write is known as PLAGIARISM and this is regarded as a grievous offence in the academia. So everyone pays attention to sources of information when we gather such information to guide the formation of our thoughts on anything we need to write about. As you read books, journals, magazines, internet materials, etc.; as you listen to radio or watch television programmes be mindful that you need to take down information about these sources so you can acknowledge them when you refer to or use their ideas. Your list of references allows your reader to find information on what you have written easily when they want to read further on the ideas of others that you have used.

There are many conventions to writing a list of references – later in your course of study your department will give you specific information on the applicable convention for your course. The most common system is the Harvard system. There is no definitive version of the Harvard system and most universities have their own. But the one used here - the American Psychological Association style - is well known and often used (American Psychological Association, 1983, 1994, 1999, 2001)

NOTES to writing References

- Use heading: References.
- Page numbers should be included for all articles in journals and in collections.

All references begin with the same information that would be provided for a printed source (or as much of that information as possible). The WWW information is then placed at the end of the reference in the same way as publishing information is given for books. It is important to give the date of retrieval because documents on the Web may change in content, move, or be removed from a site altogether. The object of this is the same as all referencing - to supply the information needed to allow a user to find a source.

Structuring Effective Sentences

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

In this lesson, you will learn the different ways of structuring effective sentences
in Technical Communication

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

- ❖ In almost all careers, it is important to write accurate, clear and concise sentences .
- ❖ If a sentence doesn't say what the writer means, misunderstandings can occur, and misunderstanding cost money and even life.
- ❖ Regardless of your field, you will be judged by how well you construct sentences.

We recommend that more work on heat-exchanger performance be done with a larger variety of different fuels at the same temperature, with the similar fuels at different temperatures, and with special fuels such as diesel fuel and shale-oil-derived fuels.

- with a larger variety of different fuels at the same temperature
- with similar fuels at different temperatures

Rules for Structuring Effective Sentences

- ❖ Create effective lists. Lists help readers to remember the information quickly and easily.

Creating Effective Lists

- Set off each listed item with a number, a letter, or a symbol(usually a bullet).
- Use numbered lists to suggest sequence or priority. Using numbers help the reader to see the total number of items in a list. For sublists, use lowercase letters.

Understanding your printer

1. Using your printer

- a. Loading paper
- b. Printing

2. Maintenance

- a. Ordering supplies
- b. Replacing ink cartridge
- c. Cleaning the ink cartridge

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

- Use bullets to avoid suggesting either sequence or priority.
For sublists, use dashes.

➤ Break up long lists. People can remember few items easily. Break up list of 10 or more items.

Tool kit:

- handsaw
- coping saw
- hacksaw
- compass saw
- adjustable wrench
- box wrench
- Stillson wrench
- socket wrench
- open-end wrench
- Allen wrench

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

➤ Present the items in parallel structure. A list is parallel if all items take the same grammatical form.

e.g. verb phrase, noun phrase

Nonparallel

Here is the sequence we plan to follow:

1. construction of the preliminary proposal
2. do library research
3. first draft
4. revision of the first draft
5. preparing the final draft

Parallel

Here is the sequence we plan to follow:

1. write the preliminary proposal
2. do library research
3. write the first draft
4. revise the first draft
5. prepare the final draft

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

- Structure and punctuate the lead-in correctly. A lead-in introduces a list. A lead-in shows how the list relates to the discussion and how the items in the list relate to each other.

The most common lead-in consists of grammatically complete clause followed by a colon (:).

Following are the three main assets:

The three main assets are as follows:

The three main assets are the following:

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

-If the items are complete sentences, use an uppercase letter at the start and a period at the end.

The new facility will offer three advantages:

- The leasing costs will be lower.
- The commuting distance for most employees will be shorter.
- The pool of potential workers will be larger.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

- If you cannot use a grammatically complete lead-in, use dash or no punctuation at all.

The committee found that the employee

- did not cause the accident
- acted immediately after the accident
- reported the accident according to procedures

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

➤ Punctuate the list correctly.

- If the items are phrases, use a lowercase letter at the start. Do not use a period or a comma at the end. The white space beneath the last item indicates the end of the list.

The new facility will offer three advantages:

- lower leasing costs
- shorter commuting distance
- larger pool of potential workers

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

-If the items are phrases followed by complete sentences, use an initial uppercase letter and a final period. Begin the complete sentences with an uppercase letter and end them with a period. Use italics to emphasize the main idea in each bullet point.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

The new facility will offer three advantages:

- Lower leasing costs. The lease will cost $1,800 per month; currently we pay $2,300.
- Shorter commuting distance. Our workers' average commute of 18 minutes would drop to 14 minutes.
- Larger pool of potential workers. In the past decade, the population has shifted westward to the area near the new facility. As a result, we would increase our potential workforce in both the semiskilled and managerial categories.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

- If the list consists of two kinds of items (phrases and complete sentences) punctuate both with uppercase letters and periods.

The new facility will offer three advantages:

- Lower leasing costs.
- Shorter commuting distance. Our workers average commute of 18 minutes drop to 14 minutes.
- Larger pool of potential workers. In the past decade, the population has shifted westward to the area near the new facility. As a result, we would increase our potential workforce in both the semiskilled and managerial categories.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

❖ Emphasize new and Important information

Sentences are often easier to understand and more emphatic if new information appears at the end.

Because of the labor problems, we anticipate a three-week delay.

We anticipate the three-week delay in production, because of labor problems.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

Try not to end the sentence with qualifying information that blunts the impact of the new information.

Weak: The joint could fail under special circumstances.

Improved: Under special circumstances, the joint could fail.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

Put guides to time and space at the beginning of the sentence, where they can provide context for the main idea of the sentence.

Since the last quarter of 2008, we have experienced an 8% turnover rate in personnel assigned to the project.

On the north side of the building, water from the leaking pipes damaged the wall.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

❖ Choose an Appropriate Sentence Length

Avoid overly long sentences.

The construction of the new facility is scheduled to begin in March, but it might be delayed by one or even two months by winter weather conditions, which could make it impossible or nearly impossible to begin excavating the foundation.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

To avoid creating such long sentences, express one idea clearly and then continue with the sentences that support your previous sentence or idea.

The construction of the new facility is scheduled to begin in March. However, construction might be delayed by one or even two months by winter weather conditions. These conditions could make it impossible or nearly impossible to begin excavating the foundation.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

Avoid overly short sentences.

Customarily, environmental cleanups are conducted on a “time-and- materials” (T&M) basis. Using the T&M basis, the contractor perform the work. Then the contractor bills for the hours worked. The cost of equipment and materials used during the work. With the T&M approach, spending for environmental cleanups by private and government entities has been difficult to contain. Also, actual contamination reduction has been slow.

Note: Overly short sentences are choppy and contain too little or incomplete information.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

The best way to revise is to combine sentences:

Customarily, environmental cleanups are conducted on on a “time-and-materials” (T&M) basis: the contractor performs the work, then bills for the hours worked and cost of equipment and materials. With the T&M approach, spending for environmental cleanups by private and government entities has been difficult to contain and contamination reduction has been slow.

13 October 2010

Aurora T. Raña UIST Technical Communication 1

Another problem with excessively short sentences is that they needlessly repeat key terms.

Ugly : I have experience working with various microprocessor-based systems. Some of these microprocessor-based systems include the T90, RCA 9600, and AIM 7600.

Gorgeous: I have experience with various microprocessor-based systems, including the T90, RCA 9600, and AIM 7600.
